PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

May 2024

We are approaching an important stretch... rent negotiations will soon be upon us. We have a five-person committee volunteering to represent us during these negotiations with ELS. Peggy Geist will serve as 1st chair with Nancy Beasley as 2nd chair; Al Walker Jr., Susan Godsell and Linda Paloff will round out our team. Peggy has represented us in the past negotiating for our community and was very successful.

At our last HOA meeting, Peggy stated that there are only five committee members to cover the entire village. Their plan is to take photographs of everything that needs to be replaced, painted, fixed or has been neglected etc. Peggy is asking for everyone's help with gathering and documenting photographs. The team will create two albums, one for ELS and one for the HOA. This was a very effective tool at the last rent negotiation meeting. As you are on your walk or cart ride through the neighborhood and see something needing to be addressed, take a picture, and send it to Peggy and include where the issue is located.

The committee volunteered to help us keep our yearly rent increases below 5%. It's only right that we help them accomplish this again this year. We will be helping ourselves and I know the committee will appreciate it.

As you enjoy the warmer days to come, make sure you take plenty time to hydrate often.

Thanks so much.

Linda Barone HOA President.

MANAGEMENT CORNER

Keeping Our Community Clean and Safe

Welcome to the May edition of our manager's corner! As we transition into warmer weather and enjoy the beauty of spring, let's focus on keeping our community clean and safe. Here are some important reminders and exciting events happening this month:

1. 🐾 Please Pick Up After Your Pooch: As we spend more time outdoors with our furry friends, let's remember to be responsible pet owners. Please pick up after your dogs and dispose of their waste properly. Not only does this keep our neighborhood clean and pleasant for everyone, but it also helps protect the environment.
2. 🚗 Mindful Driving: Safety is a top priority in our community. Let's all do our part by observing the speed limit and driving cautiously. By respecting the speed limit (17mph), we ensure the safety of pedestrians, cyclists, and other drivers on our roads.
3. 🗑️ Community Shred Event: May 11th: Mark your calendars for our upcoming community shred event on May 11th! Safely dispose of old documents and sensitive materials while protecting yourself from identity theft. Bring your documents to the front of the office from 10am - 12pm and take advantage of this free service.
4. 🗣️ If You See Something, Say Something: This month, we emphasize the importance of speaking up and reporting any concerns or incidents you may witness. Whether it's a safety issue, suspicious activity, or a community improvement suggestion, your voice matters. We encourage all residents to be proactive in submitting comment forms that can benefit our neighborhood.

FOOD AND HYPERTENSION

Healthier eating habits lower your risk for high blood pressure.

What you eat can increase your risk of high blood pressure. You can stay on top of this by making small changes in how you cook and what you eat. Making changes to your diet now can lead to tastier, not just healthier, eating.

Make good food choices.

Eating for your heart health can be simple with the DASH eating plan. DASH stands for Dietary Approaches to Stop Hypertension and includes foods from every food group. This eating plan can not only lower your blood pressure but also help you manage your weight.

One way you can use the DASH eating plan is by keeping healthy snacks at home. Here are some good snack options to include, starting with the best choices:

- Unsalted nuts
- Fresh vegetables
- Whole wheat bagel with low-fat cream cheese
- Low-fat granola bars
- Peanut butter, sunflower butter, almond butter
- Slices of lean turkey or chicken
- Fruits like oranges, grapes, raisins, and apples

Build healthy eating habits.

Unhealthy habits can sometimes lead to bigger health problems like high blood pressure. Reducing unhealthy ingredients in your cooking is one path to lower your blood pressure risks. Try these options the next time you're in the kitchen:

- Take the saltshaker off the table.
- Minimize the use of processed foods.
- Use seasonings like lemon juice, garlic, onion, and herb mixes.
- Eat more fiber with beans, lentils, and oats.
- Choose low-fat meals including lean meats such as turkey or chicken (without the skin)

Beware of false friends

Salt seems to make any dish taste better, but it's not your friend. The sodium in any type of salt can lead to elevated blood pressure which can damage your arteries. Keep an eye out for other names for these ingredients. For example, when you're watching your salt intake, look for sodium per serving. Remember that high sodium foods don't always taste salty. In addition to excessive salt, try to stay away from trans fats or added sweeteners. Try swapping out some of your usual foods for recipes that don't have those ingredients.

PREVENT FALLS IN YOUR HOME

How to lower your risk of injuries

Falls are a leading cause of injury among older adults. They can lead to twisted ankles or fractured hips, impacting your quality of life. Cluttered rooms, rugs that bunch up or slide, and dark spaces increase your risk of falling. As you age, physical changes and sometimes the medications you use can make falls more likely. Still, fear of falling doesn't need to rule your life. Consider these simple strategies to reduce your risk of injury.

Keep living spaces clear.

Living rooms and spaces where you spend a lot of time can collect clutter. Don't let your coziest rooms trip you up. Here are a few ways to make it safer:

- Make sure your sofa or chairs are at heights that allow you to easily get up or down.
- Eliminate rugs if possible. If you can't, add non-slip strips. Make sure rugs are pushed up against the wall so there are fewer edges to trip on.
- Install handrails on both sides of any stairs.
- Ensure cords don't cross over areas you walk.
- Make sure your high traffic walking areas are free of clutter.
- Put frequently used items (remotes, phone, walker, or other assistive devices) where they're easy to reach.

Bathroom: danger zone?

Bathroom tiles may look nice, but dampness adds risks. Water can find its way into many spots. This makes stepping out of the shower riskier than it needs to be. Use these tips to upgrade your bathroom:

- Never push or pull on a towel rack. They aren't safe to bear your weight. Instead, install grab bars near your toilet and shower.
- Put non-slip mats anywhere that may get wet and slippery.
- Use night lights to avoid late-night falls.
- Be cautious when stepping into and out of a tub or shower.
- Consider using a tub bench or shower seat to avoid sitting on the bottom of the tub or standing in the shower.

Safety for other rooms

Other rooms in your house might need some updates too. These ideas can help:

- Run extension cords along the walls, away from walking spaces.
- Keep a flashlight and phone near your bed at night.
- Don't use a chair to reach things. They aren't engineered for standing on. Instead, use a 'reach stick,' step stool, or ask for help.
- Add slip guards to hardwood floors.
- If possible, consider adding a banister or other assistive devices to your stairs.

These tips can only reduce the risk of falls. Be prepared with emergency numbers written in large print in each room. Getting your eyes and ears checked can also reduce your risk of falling.

TAKE CARE OF YOUR BRAIN

Tips to keep your brain healthier as you age.

Keeping your brain healthy is key to your physical and mental health. Your brain controls body processes like digestion and muscle movement. It's also the center for your emotions, memory, and decision-making. As you age, it might seem natural to focus on your physical health. But don't forget to support your brain with these healthy habits.

Exercise keeps your brain strong.

Did you know that people who get regular exercise show memory skills than those who don't? Add some activity into your routine to support your body and brain at the same time. You might try going for a walk, tai chi or starting a MOVE IT plan.

Being active not only improves your physical health but can strengthen your memory too.

Mental health and brain health

Mental health impacts your thinking. Stress and anxiety might make it hard to focus on your daily life. If you experience depression, your thoughts could feel slower or more confused. Symptoms of PTSD can interrupt your daily life.

If you experience anxiety, depression, or PTSD, talk with your health care provider to find out what treatment is best for you. Your brain health and mental health go together. Support for one is help for the other.

Be Kind
to your Mind

Sleep recharges your brain.

If you don't get enough sleep, you're not alone. You probably know what it's like to get a bad night of sleep and struggle with low energy the next day. But sleep recharges your brain too, not just your body. If you don't sleep well, it can affect your thinking and moods.

Learn about good habits to improve your sleep Give your brain the time it needs to rest and recharge so you can have a better next day. You should talk with your doctor about common sleep issues like insomnia, to make sure you have the support you need.

Talk with your doctor about brain health.

Small, occasional changes in your brain as you age can be normal. If you'd like to learn more, talk with your health care team if you're noticing frequent problems with your thinking, memory, or mood.
