Valentine's Day is a yearly celebration on February 14th. It started as a Christian holiday to remember a brave man named Valentine who was killed for being a Christian. Over time, it became a big deal in many parts of the world, not just for religious reasons, but also for celebrating love and romance.

GROUNDHOG DAY

By Joe Cortese

Have you ever experienced déjà vu? It's one of our favorite lines from the classic movie "Groundhog Day". Groundhog Day is always celebrated on February 2nd in the United States and Canada, with roots in Pennsylvania Dutch traditions.

The tradition holds that if the Groundhog emerges from its burrow and sees its shadow then we will have six more weeks of winter. This means little to a native of Miami where we typically (or tropically) don't see six days of winter let alone six weeks but for some reason (maybe déjà vu?) I've become trapped in a time loop with the Groundhog.

Glenda and I have watched this movie countless times over the years. Since it came out in 1993, we could be called "cult fans." The movie stars Bill Murray and Andie MacDowell. It's a fantasy romantic comedy about a grumpy meteorologist named Phil Connors. Phil gets stuck reliving the same day over and over again after arriving in the town of Punxsutawney, Pennsylvania for the annual Groundhog Day festivities. Although the movie isn't particularly deep or serious, it does beg the question what would you do if you could live the same day over and over again. Perhaps we would do the same as Phil.

In the movie, Phil initially lets his instincts take over and uses his gift for bad purposes. But then he realizes he could use this time to win Rita's heart. Andie MacDowell, as Rita, played Phil Connor's producer at the Pittsburgh news station. Phil tries to convince Rita that he's a better man, and guess what? He actually becomes a better man in the process and ends up winning Rita's heart. Only after this transformation and winning Rita's love does Phil finally break free from the time loop and starts living a normal life.

So after watching this movie countless times it occurred to me that I do wake up every morning with a fresh start and ready to make a positive change. This year I haven't made any of my usual New Year's resolutions, but I've got a new one. Like Phil, I'm going to use yesterday's mistakes to improve on today's reality. That way, I won't get stuck in the same old déjà vu trap and instead I'll start making good decisions over and over - so Glenda prays.

I've never figured out why this movie appeals to us so much, but maybe it's the outstanding acting, the delightful music, or that a comedy can produce so much food for thought. Speaking of food, our favorite line in the movie comes from Phil at the bed and breakfast he was staying in. Phil asks the owner, "Do you ever have déjà vu?" and she responds, "I don't know, I'll check with the kitchen."

MATURE DRIVER

License Renewal for Older Drivers

Submitted by Dana Matlock

Driver License

A Florida Class E driver license must be renewed every eight years for customers 79 years old and younger. At age 80, driver licenses must be renewed every six years. Customers may be eligible to renew their Class E Florida driver license online. Visit MyDMV.Portal to see if you are eligible to renew online.

Customers who are 80 years of age or older and are not eligible to renew their driver license online are required to pass a vision test. The test may be taken at a Florida driver license service center at no additional charge. Customers may also have a Florida-licensed medical doctor, osteopathic physician or an optometrist administer their vision test. Once a customer passes the vision test, they or their doctor must submit the Mature Driver Vision Test form (HSMV 72119S).

If the vision test reveals medical conditions that result in a referral to an eye specialist, such as a Florida-licensed ophthalmologist or an optometrist, a customer will need to submit a completed Florida Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles Report of Eye Exam Form: HSMV Form 72010.

ID Card

The time may come when driving is no longer a safe option and, when that time comes, FLHSMV encourages customers to surrender their driver license and obtain an ID card. Florida's ID card functions exactly the same as a driver license for the purpose of providing proof of identification. It can be used in airports, doctor's offices, banks or anywhere a photo identification is needed. In addition, the documentation needed for an identification card is the same as a driver license. Customers may obtain an ID card at a Florida driver license service center.

Driver License and ID Card Fees

For a list of our current fees, please view the fee schedule. All state-operated (FLHSMV) service centers accept American Express, Master Card and Discover credit cards. Accepted credit cards may vary at County Tax Collector's Offices. Please contact the service center you intend to visit in advance if you have questions about fees or acceptable methods of payment.

MY FAVORITE POSSESSIONS

By Jeanie Scionti

Since February is such a loving month, I thought I'd share with you an answer to a question my grandson posed to me, "What are your favorite possessions Grammy?"

First: My children and grandchildren are my dearest possessions. Oh, wait! They are not my possessions, but I still like to take ownership of them. My grandson smiled.

Second: My childhood doll Suzy. She now sits on a shelf looking as beautiful as ever. Nothing would ever upset me, as long as I had Suzy by my side. My mom saved that doll and delivered Suzy back to me many years later. My grandson's response, "Dolls are creepy."

Third: An old and faded blue leather bound photograph album with the title "Photographs" embossed in gold lettering on the front cover. It belonged to my mother. She kept it hidden in her cedar chest for many years. When I was a child, I would sneak into her room and rummage through that chest. I'd take out the album and go through the black and white small pictures of my parents, grandparents, and all the cousins and friends they had during the 1930s and 1940s. I still, occasionally, go through those old photographs.

My grandson, a budding photographer, likes perusing the album, and agrees it is nice to have it.

Last: My engagement ring. I remember on our tenth wedding anniversary my husband wanted to replace the small solitaire engagement ring with a larger stone in a new setting. I was aghast at that thought. I thanked him for the gesture and added that a replacement of any part of that set of rings would never happen.

That ring is a story of two young people...very much in love...who were checking out engagement rings in a store window of the Diamond Exchange, in Manhattan, NY. A salesman came out and ushered us into his store and on that day, we started on the road to a marriage. After we made our purchase, we went to my intended's apartment. My man wanted to have his elder landlord not only meet his future wife but also allow him to see the engagement ring. After our friendly introductions, Mr. Marini, the landlord, smiled at me and said how lucky Thomas was to have such a lovely fiancée. He then asked to see the ring. With it in hand, he went to a cabinet and took out a 'Loupe' to inspect the diamond. He insisted on a closer look. I remember thinking to myself, "Is this guy for real?" He pronounced it a clear and fine diamond set in a simple and elegant setting. Thomas took his inspection to heart and gave a sigh of relief.

I still wear that ring today. I vividly recall that day, even though it was over 60 years ago. And, with love, I still remember Mr. Marini.

OLD COOT REMEMBERS HIS BEST CHRISTMAS PRESENT EVER

Written By Merlin Lessler

Submitted by Daniel Behanick

It happened when I was seven, the best Christmas present a kid (in the fifties) could hope for, was under the tree. A bicycle! My sister, Madeline, and I both got bikes that year, second-hand, but freshened up with a new coat of paint. We didn't care; they sparkled, as did our eyes when we saw them under the tree. But, into the basement they went, to wait for Spring to arrive. Finally, the first robin arrived and the bikes came out. We lived on a hill; it was steep and a terrible place to learn how to ride. My father helped me push it up to a flat street at the top of our hill that hardly had any traffic on it. I still remember the exhilaration of staying upright while he pushed me. I remember even more vividly, the terror I felt when I looked over my shoulder and discovered he wasn't there. I panicked and crashed to the ground. He eventually convinced me that I'd kept the bike upright all by myself and didn't need his help, except to get started. I hopped back on, and like Hopalong Cassidy, my cowboy hero, rode off into the sunset. One problem; I didn't know how to dismount. When I came to a stop, I simply fell over. My sister solved the problem. She raced ahead, jumped off her bike and caught me as I came to a stop. Later on, I just stopped near a curb and put out my foot so I could climb off. It wasn't my fault; the bike was too big, like everything in those days. We had to "grow into" stuff: shoes, clothes, skates, sleds and yes, bikes. I went around in oversized jeans (we called them dungarees) with a six inch cuff, shoes with wadded up newspaper stuffed in the toes and to top it off, I had to use a curb to get on and off my bike. Now that I'm in my 80's, I still use a curb when one is available. I developed a deep relationship with that two-wheeler. I don't think a cowboy ever loved his horse more than I loved that bike. It was freedom; it was status; and it taught me how to fix things. I learned to take it apart and convert it into a racing bike, by removing the fenders, reversing the handlebars and raising the seat. Sometimes, I decorated it with red, white and blue crepe paper and rode at the tail end of Memorial Day and Fourth of July parades. A lot of kids did. We also clothespinned a piece of cardboard to the fender support so it would flap against the spokes and made it sound like we were riding a motorcycle. It didn't take much to entertain a kid back in the fifties.

When I turned 12, I found a lightweight, English bike, with hand brakes and three gears under the tree. It was brand-new and the exact right size. I was ecstatic, but I'll always think of that used, repainted first bicycle as the best Christmas present ever. I hope your Christmas was as merry as mine was back then.

FEBRUARY'S PRACTICAL TABLE

By Kevin Gallagher, MS, CEC Emeritus

February has always been a practical month in the culinary calendar. Historically, it was a time when households relied on staples—grains, beans, preserved vegetables, and whatever could be coaxed from winter storage. Before modern refrigeration and global shipping, February meals were built on resourcefulness. You cooked what you had, stretched what you could, and leaned on dishes that were warm, filling, and uncomplicated.

Even now, with full grocery shelves and year-round produce, February still carries that instinct for simplicity. It's a month that invites straightforward cooking: fewer ingredients, slower moments, and meals that feel grounding without being heavy. Think of it as the bridge between winter comfort and early spring practicality.

One of the most enduring staples across cultures has been the humble bean. In medieval Europe, beans were a primary source of protein during the late winter months. In early American kitchens, they were essential—affordable, filling, and adaptable. Today, they remain one of the easiest ways to build a satisfying meal without fuss.

This recipe leans into that tradition. It's simple, hearty, and built from ingredients most people already have on hand all-in-one pan! It's the kind of dish that fits February perfectly: warm enough for a cool evening, light enough for a mild Florida day, and flexible enough to adapt to whatever you find in your pantry. The two toppings boost flavor and richness without dramatically shifting overall nutrition.

Creamy White Beans with Garlic & Herbs

Servings: 2

Ingredients

1 tbsp olive oil
2 garlic cloves, minced
1 can (15 oz) white beans, drained and rinsed
½ cup chicken broth
1 tbsp butter
½ tsp kosher salt
¼ tsp black pepper
½ tsp dried thyme or oregano
1 large handful of baby spinach

Topping: grated Parmesan and a drizzle of extra-virgin olive oil

Instructions

1. Warm the olive oil in a deep skillet or medium-sized sauce pan over medium heat. Add garlic and cook 30–45 seconds until fragrant.
2. Add the beans, stirring them into the garlic oil.
3. Pour in the broth and bring to a gentle simmer. Cook 5 minutes to warm thoroughly.
4. Stir in the butter, salt, pepper, and herbs. If desired, mash a few beans lightly with the back of a spoon to thicken the mixture.
5. Add spinach and cook 1–2 minutes until wilted.
6. Taste and adjust seasoning with salt and pepper. Top with a healthy sprinkle of Parmesan cheese and a drizzle of extra-virgin olive oil. Serve warm with crusty bread or spooned over toasted sourdough.

Note: To make this dish vegan:

1. Sub olive oil for butter
2. Sub vegetable stock for chicken broth
3. Remove Parmesan cheese topping.

HOME MAINTENANCE TIPS FOR FLORIDA HOMEOWNERS

Submitted by Dana Matlock

Paying attention to – and taking care of – home maintenance tasks is not just a good idea; it can actually leave you with more money in your pocket. You save by preventing larger, and costlier repairs and injuries.

Take Care of the Small Stuff

Not only is it cheaper to perform preventive measures or minor repairs as they're needed, but regular checkups and routine repairs of your home can ensure it remains a safe, comfortable, and enjoyable place to live. Get started with these preventive home maintenance tasks:

- Keep outside gutters clean – it's one of the easiest ways to ensure standing water won't damage your home.
- Replace air filters – it improves air quality in your home, reducing the risk of respiratory issues.
- Clean the dryer vent after each load – this helps your dryer operate efficiently and can help protect your home against the most common cause of dryer fires.
- Test smoke and carbon monoxide alarms monthly; replace the alarms every 10 years.
- Check gauge/expiration date on fire extinguishers to ensure they'll operate as they should in an emergency.
- Flush toilets and run water through all faucets in the house to make sure everything is functioning as it should. Keep an eye out for leaks, slow drains, and unpleasant smells – which could indicate a plumbing issue, clogs or faulty fixtures, and the presence of stagnant water or bacterial growth.
- Turn each circuit breaker off and on to ensure all is working as it should.
- Press the "test" button on all GFCI outlets – these are typically found in bathrooms, the kitchen, near a washer and dryer, in garages, and outside the house.
- Inspect all electrical cords for signs of tears or fraying, making it unsafe to use.
- Apply caulk wherever it has cracked or pulled away from windows, doorways, bathtubs, toilets, sinks, etc. for proper insulation.
- Drain your hot water heater – doing this once a year can reduce the likelihood of sediment buildup and prolong the life of your heater. This is especially true throughout Florida, where hard, mineral-laden tap water is common.
- Professional cleaning of HVAC and dryer vent – your AC should be professionally cleaned and maintained at least twice a year, and your dryer vent (the tubing going from your dryer to outside your home) once a year.

AMAZON PRODUCT EXPLODES — URGENT RECALL

INIU portable power banks recalled by CPSC

Submitted by John Mercurio

Over 200,000 dangerous power banks sold through Amazon are now under federal recall after causing fires and burn injuries, exposing how unsafe foreign-made products continue flooding American markets through online platforms.

Story Snapshot

- 210,000 INIU portable power banks recalled by CPSC due to fire and burn hazards
- At least 15 overheating incidents reported, including 11 fires causing injuries and property damage
- Products sold on Amazon between August 2021 and April 2022 with specific serial numbers
- Consumers must stop using immediately and contact INIU for full refund

Dangerous Power Banks Spark Federal Safety Action

The Consumer Product Safety Commission issued an urgent recall for approximately 210,000 INIU portable lithium-ion battery power banks sold exclusively through Amazon. These model BI-B41 devices, marketed as 100,000mAh capacity units, pose serious fire and burn risks to American families.

The recalled power banks feature black or blue cases with the INIU logo and distinctive paw-print LED lights, making them easily identifiable to concerned consumers who purchased these dangerous devices.

Proper Disposal Prevents Environmental Hazards

The recalled power banks cannot be disposed of through regular trash, curbside recycling, or standard battery collection boxes. The previous landfill on Old Kings Road takes household hazardous waste products.

FEDERATION OF MANUFACTURED HOMEOWNERS OF FLORIDA (FMO)

By James Pursley, FMO Representative

Hey everyone, how's it going in this New Year?

Can you believe it's a new year already? When I was younger I was super excited about the new year because of all the parties and watching the Ball drop. As most of you know, I'm from Georgia, and we like to do things our way (sometimes). So, the bigwigs in Georgia had this brilliant idea to have a Peach Drop instead of a ball since we're known as the Peach State. The peach looked absolutely stunning! The first year, everything went off without a hitch. There were huge crowds, all the local TV stations were there, and it was a blast. But then, the countdown started, and something went wrong. It got stuck! The year went on, and it hasn't happened since.

So, about those New Year's resolutions, I hope you're doing great! Now, I'm not sure if this counts as a resolution, but I've started drinking again. Before you start calling my lovely wife, she already knows. No, it's not what you think. It's coffee that I've started drinking again. When I was younger, I used to drink it straight - black coffee, nothing in it. I liked to have a few cups a day, nothing too big. Then, out of nowhere, I quit. I went for a few years of never having a cup. Then, my son treated me to an iced coffee at a local chain restaurant, which didn't go over very well with my stomach. I swore never again would I drink coffee. Time went by, and someone offered to take me to one of the well-known expensive coffee houses. What a difference! Now, the moral of the story is that I'm brewing eight cups at a time.

Another thing that is hard to believe is the Federation of Manufactured Homeowners (FMO). They've been around since 1962 and are a statewide consumer advocacy group that protects the rights and interests of manufactured homeowners who live on leased land. If you're interested in learning more, head over to fmo.org. They've got all the info you need there. And if you have any questions, feel free to reach out to me at jpinvest129@gmail.com. I'm James, the one with coffee running out of my ears. Happy New Year!

SOCIAL COMMITTEE NEWS

By Patty Watkins & Cyndi Easter

Our Social Committee would like to extend heartfelt appreciation to Diane Williams, who has decided to retire from her long-held role selling tickets for our community events. Diane's dedication, reliability, and warm presence have been a true gift to our neighborhood, and we are deeply grateful for her years of service. As Diane steps back, we are delighted to welcome Peggy Grandin, who will be taking over the ticket sales. Peggy brings wonderful enthusiasm to the role, and we're excited to have her join the team.

With a new season of activities ahead, the Social Committee has been busy planning events that bring neighbors together and keep our community lively. February and March are filled with opportunities to connect, celebrate, and enjoy time with friends.

We encourage everyone to attend our monthly meetings, held on the first Monday of every month at 1:30 p.m. These gatherings are a wonderful opportunity to connect, share ideas, and be involved in our community. If you have any questions or suggestions, please feel free to reach out to Cyndi Easter at (618) 558-9976 or Patty Watkins at (386) 986-6245.
